

Speaker 1: In Tallahassee, one senior living community is among the first to enroll in the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's COVID-19 vaccine program. Residents at Azalea Gardens Assisted Living & Memory Care will receive free vaccinations as soon as the COVID-19 vaccine's approved. Community Director, Jeff Rardin hopes the program will help residents get to see their families more.

Jeff Rardin: Family members visiting Memory Care, [inaudible 00:00:24], it's very important. It's important to their health, their wellbeing, and I think if the vaccine helps us with that visitation and getting those family members here more access, it's worth it.

Speaker 1: [00:00:30] The CDC's partnership with Walgreens and CVS will provide free vaccination clinics at senior living centers across the country.
